FRIDAY May 26, 1893. THE EVENING STAR has a regular and permanent circulation in Washington three times larger than that of any other paper in the city. As a local NEWS paper and Advertising Medium it has no competitor.

Not unnaturally and yet oftentimes without reason, the people of Chicago have taken exception to criticisms which have their origin in some of the unfortunate conditions unexpectedly called into existence by exigencies easily consequent upon the upbuilding and management of the greatest industrial exposition this decidedly too personal, but such friction was the | well as in other parts of the country. legitimate outcome of the competitive methods adopted by Chicago, New York and St. Louis when they were engaged in buttonholing and be located. It may be, and probably is, that some of the New York and St. Louis criticisms were inspired by malice, but outside of those cities there has been no disposition to be unkind or unfair, and it is believed that now such an inconsistency. a disposition nowhere exists. There is almost universal recognition of the fact that Chicago ful than any similar enterprise has been, and millions of Americans and Europeans are going to do what they can to make such a desirable consummation a pleasing reality. All good Americans desire to see the great fair successful in every respect, and believe that it can hardly fail in any material point. And that it may not it is the duty of all Americans in a kindly manner to point out and endeavor to correct any serious weakness which may threaten to retard the most stupendous enterprise of modern times. Chicago is great, but it has not reached inerrancy.

Good citizens of the United States who are acquainted with Mr. W. E. Quinby, editor and proprietor of the Detroit Free Press, will not thank President Cleveland for sending him as minister to the Netherlands. There are but few such genial men in the country as the newly appointed diplomat, and when the chief executive deliberately exiles him he brings sorrow to a large number of American hearts. But there should be great joy in Holland.

Formerly the difficulty that the authorities had in matters of crime was the capture of the wrong doer. Volumes of detective stories have been inspired by this single feature of police duty. But times have changed, and the capture of the criminal is not the chief point of interest. It is a comparatively easy matter to get a criminal in custody. Keeping him there is what bothers.

But the dream was soon broken by a rude awakening, while the roseate hues paled into the ghastly whiteness of death. Lives were lost because the system was faulty. people who survived the shocks that reached them through crossed wires were scared into premature disability, the occasional smashing of a minor piece of mechanism disabled the entire road and discommoded the public, and hundreds of thousands of dollars went up in flame and smoke because the overhead obstructions of the trolley method interfered with the workings of fire departments. The necessity for something better in the way of an electric motor impressed itself upon many minds and there was feeble demand for improvement. The cry brought forth no response rom the vast amount of capital interested in the spread of the trolley doctrine, and when an inventor occasionally bobbed above the surface with what seemed to be a good idea he was has ever seen. The observation is not new, but speedily disposed of, often by the application it has the merit of absolute truthfulness .- Balpeedily disposed of, often by the application of a dollar-stuffed club. Discussing the latter style the New York Times

tion of the authorities in other cities where the poles and overhead wires have been set up or where permission to set them up has been sought upon the plea that there is no other practicable method of applying electric motive CROSBY S. The company which uses this underground system within the city limits moves its cars on that portion of its line which lies beyond the boundary by the overhead trolley, because the first cost of the overhead plant is less than that of such an underground plant as the company has put in, but it is reported that 30 per cent more power is obtained by the use coveries made in connection with the prepara- of the subterranean wires and that the cost of operation is less by 30 per cent than in the case law is that which touches upon the adulteration of the overhead system." Our own faith in the ultimate success of other means than the trolley is stronger than ever, and we are glad to note that the magnitude of the prize still tempts adventurous capital. The later attempts have certainly gone nearer the goal than any that preceded them, and every month sees an advance. A few weeks officers have in almost every civilized center of "Our own faith in the ultimate success of which many people imbibe for cooling and every month sees an advance. A few weeks purposes in the summer time or swal-low as aids to increased caloric in the wintry season may be immediately dangerous even to the wintry trips in this city. Last week we described a very promising conduit road in Washington, and this week Mr. Shaw describes a conduit the pickled toper and yet escape official inspection. It has been argued by those who refuse to recognize the right of any one to do as trolley in the conduit slot. Altogether, therehe or she pleases, even within the limits of the fore, the time is near when the public, eager for rapid transit, but in dire fear of the 'deadly law, that it really makes no difference to sober society how vile or how poisonous intoxicants something better than it has hitherto enjoyed."
